Overview

Peighton's practice focuses on general litigation and environmental law.

Peighton earned her J.D. from University of Maryland Francis King Carey School of Law where she participated in the Maryland Carey Law National Trial team and acted as a member and community chair for the Maryland Environmental Law Society. While earning her J.D., Peighton worked as a Law Clerk at a Boston Litigation firm and as a legal intern at the Mass DEP Office of General Counsel, where she conducted substantive research on complex environmental issues and provided legal support on public resource protection issues.

Peighton earned her Bachelor of Arts degree, graduating magna cum laude, from the College of the Holy Cross, majoring in Psychology with a minor in environmental science.
